CAPACITY BUILDING

People taking action need skills in core areas including assessment, planning, advocacy, evaluation, and sustainability.

The KU Center for Community Health and Development has decades of experience teaching and stimulating use of basic community competencies; online, and through in-person, workshops, webinars, and classes.

WHAT OTHERS ARE SAYING

“I learned so much from this training! I tell everyone about it. I feel like I have a whole team of personal coaches.

The KU CCHD staff is the most responsive, helpful support I’ve ever received from an initiative like this. I know [we] will be a better coalition for having experienced this. I can’t wait to put my new skills to work.”

“I am very excited to take back the information I have learned and use it in my community.”

“Enjoyed the activities and ability to work with my team on a particular topic/issue.”

PRACTICAL AND PRODUCT-ORIENTED
Participants can expect an interactive workshop supported by participant’s guides, links to relevant online resources, and learning from real-world examples. Supplemental free, web-materials from the Community Tool Box, http://ctb.ku.edu, are available to support learners back home after the training.

Costs vary depending on the type and length of training.
